

Biography

Associate Professor Phillippa Poole

BSc MBChB FRACP

Associate Dean (Medical Programme)

University of Auckland

Assoc. Prof. Phillippa Poole is an Associate Professor in Medicine as well as Associate Dean of the Faculty of Medical and Health Sciences, providing leadership of the medical curriculum development and its management.

She is a general physician at Auckland City Hospital, and is past president of the Internal Medicine Society of Australia and New Zealand. She has been involved developing the new RACP physician training curriculum. Particular education interests include developing a diverse workforce to meet health need, vertical integration in training, professional and clinical skills acquisition, and clinical decision-making. Other research interests include comprehensive management of COPD.